CANDIDATO A

Edible insects in our daily diet

A recent report released by the FAO (Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations) called “Edible insects: Future prospects for food and feed security” reminds us, among other things, that nowadays about two billion people already eat insects as part of their daily diet.

Discuss with your partner the global food problems the world population is facing at present.

Also, talk about how the FAO report makes you feel about eating insects from a cultural, nutritional, fashion trend and environmental point of view.
